It was a beautiful summer afternoon with the sun shining brightly. I excitedly phoned my friends asking them to come over later for a barbecue.

After making the calls I quickly drove into town to buy some food and drink. _____ I arrived at the shops I was very surprised at _____ busy it was. Everyone must have been shopping for a barbecue!

The first butchers I visited had completely run out of sausages. The next shop had some left so I happily bought some. After visiting a few more shops I had finally finished my shopping. But I was starting to worry as it was 6 p.m. and I had invited my friends to visit at 6:30 p.m.

I hastily rushed to the car park with all of my shopping and threw it in the boot. Suddenly I notice that the cars were moving really slowly out of the car park and there was a bit of traffic jam. It was past 6:30 p.m. _____ I arrived home and I was extremely worried. Vidigal is Rio's most foreigner-friendly slum, with guesthouses, coffee houses, restaurants and even a sushi-bar aimed at the tourist market. It is relatively small and picturesque, with spectacular views over the Atlantic, and an hour-long walking trail that winds from its upper limits to the top of the Dois Irmãos mountain.

When pacified in 2012, Vidigal was already popular with artists, young Brazilians and foreigners. Scottish school librarian Graeme Boyd, 34, lived there for two six-month periods, in 2009 and 2011. "As long as foreigners respect the locals, make a contribution and use the business inside the favela, they will be welcomed," he said. "People reacted to me as if I had lived there all my life".

(adapted from www.theguardian.com)

GLOSSARY:

slum = favela

guesthouses = pousadas

- a) Foreigners are welcome as long as they contribute to the business in Vidigal.
- b) Graeme Boyd was popular between Brazilian artists in 2009 and 2011.
- c) Tourists cannot find Japanese food and places to rest.
- d) Local residents prefer to disrespect foreigners.

Sometimes you don't have to read an article completely to get the necessary information. Often you can move your eyes quickly over the reading to find facts, names, dates, titles. For example, if you are looking for a date, you should move your eyes down the page looking for numbers. If you are looking for a person's names, you should find capital letters. Punctuation is also a clue for finding specific information. Quotation marks ("), commas (,), parentheses ( ), and dashes (--) all separate special information.

- a) You always need to read the entire article when you are looking for information.
- b) Occasionally you can get necessary information by skimming an article.
- c) It's not possible to find a person's name if you read all the words.

- d) Capital letters are not used to find specific information.

Alberto Santos Dumont (1873-1932) was born in Brazil and educated in Paris. He made his first balloon ascent in 1898 and, soon after that, began constructing dirigible airships. In 1901 he won a Paris air race and international fame. (After the race, he asked Louis Cartier for a timepiece that would keep his hands free - the first wristwatch.)

Turning to heavier-than-air machines, Santos Dumont built his 14-Bis in 1906, three years after the Wright brothers' initial flight. His flight was the first in Europe, and his plane was the first anywhere to lift off the ground under its own power. In 1909 Santos Dumont designed the Demoiselle monoplane, the first modern light plane.

In 1901 Santos Dumont fell ill with multiple sclerosis and retired from flying. He returned to Brazil in 1916. Ill and despondent over the use of aircraft in warfare, he committed suicide in 1932.

(Adapted From "Leaders of the Century")

According to the text, Santos Dumont _____

- a) developed hot air balloons, dirigible airships and heavier-than-air machines.
 b) drew the Demoiselle cargo airplane, the most modern plane.
 c) died of multiple sclerosis before returning to Brazil.

Renata, from Brazil: I just kiss them on the cheek. Just one kiss, because I'm from São Paulo. I have friends from Rio and they always kiss twice.

Guillermo, from Chile: When it's the first time I'm meeting someone or in formal situations, I shake hands. With my male friends, I give them a hug or a pat on the back but if I'm greeting a female friend, it's different: I give her a kiss on the cheek and sometimes I hug her. Women greet each other the same way: kissing and sometimes hugging.

Marco, from Italy: I shake hands in formal situations. Where I live, kissing is acceptable. It's OK for men to kiss each other, for men to kiss women or for women to kiss each other. But with my male friends I usually just give a hug or a pat on the back.

Molly, from the USA: When I greet close friends I give them a hug. For casual friends, I just say "Hi". For men it's a little different. Where I live they never hug each other, it's just "Hey, man". In formal situations I always shake hands, and it's important to shake hands firmly. When I'm saying good-bye to people I'm not very close to, I also shake hands, be it a man or a woman. Kissing is not usual around here, unless it's among really close family members.

Why Learn with English Podcasts?

English language podcasts are an excellent way to learn English quickly.

You can listen to them anytime anywhere – at your desk or while you're on the move. What better way to pass the time during a long commute than by immersing yourself in an entertaining podcast?

With a little dedication, English language podcasts will help you quickly improve your listening skills and proficiency. One perk (benefit) is that podcasts often have transcripts (a written version of the audio). This means that you can listen and read at the same time, or look at a transcript if one part of a podcast confuses you. As you know, if you dedicate to your studies, you will succeed in life.

The Science Behind Hawaii's Surprising 2018 Volcanic Eruption

Kilauea volcano is spewing lava and belching hazardous gases on Hawaii's Big Island, forcing more than 1,700 people to evacuate their homes. Eruptions aren't anything new on Kilauea. In particular, the Pu'u 'Ō'ō vent, where lava is visible, has erupted almost continuously since January 1983. But the latest eruption took volcanologists by surprise when it invaded Leilani Estates, a residential area near Kilauea. Small earthquakes had shaken the region all that week, but residents were taken aback by 5.0- and 6.9- magnitude earthquakes on May 3 and 4, respectively, which preceded lava eruptions. Now, newly opened fissures are bubbling with lava almost daily, and Hawaii County Civil Defense has warned sightseers to stay away for safety's sake.

Tourists in Maya Bay

Maya Bay in Thailand made headlines in 1999 when Hollywood arrived there to film 'The Beach' starring Leonardo DiCaprio. Since then, tourists have flooded this beach with as many as 4,000 visitors arriving on boats every day. The mass tourism exhausted the once-pristine beach and ruined the natural life. That is why people closed the beach to tourists for four months. When it reopens by the end of September, they will impose a limit of 2,000 visitors per day. A marine scientist said that he and the other scientists made a mistake thinking that the money from the movie was very important, but now they see that the beach is a natural resource that they have to preserve. Zelda Tinska, an actress from the film, said that she honestly thinks that the West is a society which is obsessed with fame and celebrity. People do not visit the beach because they want to see the actual location but because there was a film shot there – and Thailand is an amazing country and there are many other beaches as beautiful as Maya Bay.
